Experience

Senior UX/UI Designer

Fever

Taking the lead in crafting UX designs that Fever uses for developing interface applications, define the best practices of building intelligent experiences and help product teams to make that happen.

Junior UX Designer

Lighthouse London

Working closely to support the lead UX Designers and collaborating with the wider business on a range of projects gathering UX requirements, producing UX documentation, building prototypes, organising and conducting user research and ensuring the development of high-quality user experiences.

Womenswear Loungewear Designer & General Design Assistant Crew Clothing

Owning the womenswear loungewear capsule which included knit, jersey, sweat and woven garments. Alongside the loungewear design duties I was womenswear the main range assistant designer.

Education

Certified UX Designer course

Career Foundry

Aug '19 –Jun '20

I believe that specialising in knitwear design has equipped me with excellent organisation skills, meticulous attention to detail and the ability to calmly work under pressure to meet strict deadlines.

BA (Hons) Knitwear Design

London College of Fashion

Sep '09 –Jun '12

I believe that specialising in knitwear design has equipped me with excellent organisation skills, meticulous attention to detail and the ability to calmly work under pressure to meet strict deadlines.

What I love most about fashion design is creative problem solving, finding the best design solutions with consideration of budget, deadline and skills.
